Answers to questions 2014-2015

Legislative Council Election
 The Legislative Council (LC) election results were announced on 12 June 2016. The results showed that the Democratic Party (DP) won the most seats, with 13 out of 20 seats. The DP's victory was a significant milestone in the party's history, as it marked the first time the party had won a majority in the LC. The DP's success was attributed to its strong performance in the district constituencies, where it won 10 seats. In the functional constituencies, the DP won 3 seats, while the pro-establishment parties won 7 seats. The results reflected the growing support for the DP among voters, particularly in the district constituencies. The DP's victory was seen as a sign of the party's increasing influence in Hong Kong's political landscape.
